ensued, throwing more than a million people out of work. Although Mexico's trade surplus with the U.S. surged to an all-time high in 1995, based largely on the peso's lower value, the economy is still floundering.

"So is the PRI. Salinas's once shining image and the hope it represented to the Mexican people were both tarnished by the revelations that his brother may have spirited more than 100 million dollars from the nation's treasury.

"'The system is dead,' author Carlos Fuentes told Charles Krause, who found evidence of change all over Mexico, though not that dramatic: A free press is struggling to emerge in print and television. Opposition parties have won important local elections. The middle class, battered by the crisis, is restless. 'People are really frustrated,' said a teacher. 'they want to pay off what they owe, but they can't. If things get worse, an uprising could very well come from some sector of the population. What else could people do?'"

This is not Presidential Candidate Pat Buchanan saying these things, it is National Geographic. I have never heard of anyone accusing National Geographic of being "extremist".

As if what National Geographic says is not bad enough, lets conclude with some quotes from Reader's Digest (January 1996, "Our Drug - Plagued Mexican Border", page 54). "The root of the problem? Insiders say the agency is more concerned with making border trade convenient than with interdicting drugs. As the Treasury Department's assistant inspector general for investigations, James M. Cottos, told U.S. Customs Commissioner George Weise, 'While facilitating international commerce, customs procedures may also be facilitating the entry of contraband.'" Reader's Digest also has a highlighted, bolded box that says: "'The agency is letting up," says a former customs official. "And we're drowning in drugs.'"

Again, this is Reader's Digest saying this, not "extremist" Pat Buchanan. All of these broken promises and the national sovereignty, the political independence, of the U.S.A. is compromised in the process.

What can you and I do about this? Well, as I have told our members in my monthly newsletter "The Good News Report" (sm), there is actually some good news here. You can vote for and do all you can to elect the men and women that are on our "GOOD GUYS" list. It is these men and women that responded to our Candidate Questionnaire as opposing this agreement. We asked the same questions whether they were running for School Board or U.S. Senate. It is all too easy for us Americans to complain about what is bad in our elected leaders, but when there are men and women that have gone against the Presidential candidates of both major parties and opposed this agreement, you and I need to do all we can to see to that they win their office. Even if you need to stay up all night rolling and tossing these flyers on your neighbor's driveway through election day, you need to do just that. They are putting their careers and their lives on the line and you need to sacrifice much time, money and energy to help them because they have stood against the sell out of America. ☺

THE LIE:

"Abortion should not only be safe and legal, it should be rare."

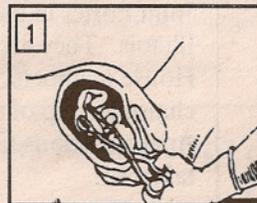

"And that is why we must promote adoption."

President Clinton-Acceptance speech during the '96 Democrat National Convention.

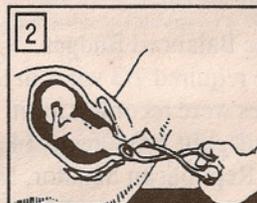

WRONG!

He vetoed the Partial Birth Abortion ban that would have ended the use of this procedure except to save the life of the mother and would have promoted adoption. ☺

"The partial-birth abortion procedure is used after 20 weeks (4 1/2 months) of pregnancy — often to six months and even later. The difference between partial-birth abortion and homicide is a mere three inches... " (National Right to Life Committee handout).

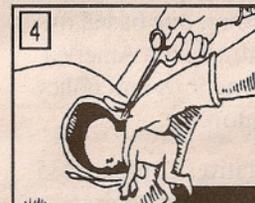

1 Guided by ultrasound, the abortionist grabs the baby's leg with forceps.

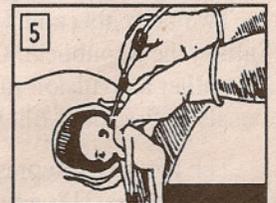

2 The baby's leg is pulled out into the birth canal.

3 The abortionist delivers the baby's entire body except for the head.

4 The abortionist jams scissors into the baby's skull. The scissors are then opened to enlarge the hole.

5 A suction tube is inserted. The child's brains are sucked out, causing the skull to collapse. The dead baby is then removed.
